December 1, 1905

One of the cases of yellow fever reported on the 14th instant was that of a mate from the British bark Alexander Black, lying at the Talapiedra wharf. This man stated to me that he had walked directly from his vessel to the Plaza, where he remained for a short time and returned without stopping anywhere in the city. In walking through the city he passed through what is known as the infected district.

The Cuban quarantine service is maintaining a quarantine against New Orleans and Mobile and Gulf ports except Tampa, Key West, and Miami. Passengers from the quarantined ports are required to go into detention at Triscornia five days after arrival. The crews from these vessels are not permitted ashore, except the captain and purser in the transaction of official business.
